Wesley has a passion for empowering people through unanticipated and difficult times. While an undergraduate student at Belmont University, Wesley worked directly with small businesses to help grow their companies while serving their communities. For his efforts, Wesley won a national championship in a business competition, ahead of nearly 600 other universities nationwide. Wesley went to law school to continue helping people and businesses get through the unexpected and challenging situations that inevitably arise.

Wesley obtained his law degree from Wake Forest University School of Law. After graduation, he relocated to Charlotte. Wesley has grown to love this great city and is proud to call Charlotte home. Wesley's previous work includes cases concerning personal injury, business litigation, workers' compensation and employment law. When he is not working, Wesley is actively involved in Charlotte's growing craft beer community and attends Uptown Presbyterian Church.
